

Mutual Fund and ETF Revenue-Sharing Families

SEPTEMBER 2023

The following information includes a list of the mutual fund and ETF families that made revenue sharing payments to Morgan Stanley, including E*TRADE from Morgan Stanley, during 2022. More detailed information on our mutual fund revenue sharing practices, fees and compensation can be found in our “Mutual Fund Features, Share Classes and Compensation” brochure, available at the Disclosures link on the Morgan Stanley website and in the Disclosure Library at etrade.com. For more detailed information regarding our ETF revenue sharing practices, please refer to the “ETF Revenue Sharing, Expense Payments and Data Analytics Fees” brochure, also available at the Disclosures Link on the Morgan Stanley website.

Morgan Stanley charges a support fee, also called a revenue-sharing payment, on client account holdings in mutual funds. We also charge a support fee with respect to actively-managed ETFs (i.e., those that seek to outperform a market index or target return) that our Financial Advisors/Private Wealth Advisors can recommend for purchase (“In-Scope ETFs”). Support fees are based on a tiered rate which increases along with the management fee of the fund so that lower management fee funds pay lower rates than those with higher management fees. The rate ranges up to a maximum of 0.10% per year ($10 per $10,000 of assets).

The tiered rates are the same for commission-based brokerage and fee-based advisory client account holdings. However, for advisory accounts, there are account-type and program exceptions, and the fees are rebated to clients. Please see the applicable Morgan Stanley ADV brochure for additional information.

Set forth below is a listing of the mutual fund and ETF families from which we received revenue-sharing payments of at least $250,000 in 2022. Families are listed in descending order based on the total amount of revenue-sharing payments we recognized from each family.

Although we seek to charge all mutual fund and ETF families the same revenue-sharing fee rate schedule, in aggregate, Morgan Stanley receives significantly more revenue sharing from the families with the largest client mutual fund and In-Scope ETF holdings at our firm. This fact presents a conflict of interest for Morgan Stanley to promote and, where applicable, recommend mutual funds and In-Scope ETFs from those families rather than fund families that either do not pay us revenue sharing, or in aggregate, pay us less revenue sharing. In addition, since our revenue-sharing rates are higher for mutual funds and In-Scope ETFs with higher management fees, this fact presents a conflict of interest for us to promote and, where applicable, recommend mutual funds and In-Scope ETFs that have higher management fees. In order to mitigate this conflict, Financial Advisors and their Branch Office Managers do not receive additional compensation as a result of revenue-sharing payments received by Morgan Stanley. Moreover, for advisory account clients, the fees are rebated.
