At Morgan Stanley, we find many clients are looking for an investment strategy that not only seeks to generate market-rate financial returns, but that also strives to deliver positive environmental and social impact.

That’s why in 2012, we launched Investing with Impact, which provides a range of client-centered sustainable solutions. Our approach enables clients of all account sizes to achieve their financial and impact goals, leveraging the firm’s market position as a leading Wealth Management firm.

Working in partnership with a Morgan Stanley Financial Advisor, clients can identify a solution that is most appropriate, which may be implementing a completely activated or partially activated sustainable investment portfolio across asset classes.

There is no “one size fits all” approach to Investing with Impact

Morgan Stanley has designed a proprietary process to identify a client’s specific impact priorities and match them with an appropriate Investing with Impact solution. With more than 120 investment strategies and additional customizable portfolio solutions across asset classes, we can tailor our clients’ portfolios to match their preferences and monitor both financial and impact results overtime. Investors of all sizes can seek to advance broad sustainability solutions as well as mitigate climate change, support diversity and inclusion, promote community economic development and more.
A Framework for Investing with Impact

Every client has a unique set of priorities to consider when making investment decisions that seek to align with personal values.

Risk management, return potential and mission and values alignment are among the top motivations for investors, leading to a holistic integration of Investing with Impact approaches across asset classes. Morgan Stanley has developed a proprietary framework to define each of these investable approaches to clarify implementation options. This framework should be considered alongside traditional asset allocation, analysis and investment selection process, which is the basis for constructing a complete portfolio or choosing specific allocations of your holdings. As you move across the chart illustrating the framework from left to right, the impact of each approach becomes increasingly targeted and integrated into the investment process.

Private Funds (which include hedge funds and private equity funds) often engage in speculative investment techniques and are only suitable for long-term, qualified investors. Investors could lose all or a substantial amount of their investment. They are generally illiquid, not tax-efficient and have higher fees than many traditional investments.

Investing in the market entails the risk of market volatility. The value of all types of investments may increase or decrease over varying time periods. Fixed Income investing entails credit risks and interest rate risks. When interest rates rise, bond prices generally fall.

The returns on a portfolio consisting primarily of sustainable investments may be lower or higher than a portfolio that is more diversified or where decisions are based solely on investment considerations. Because sustainability criteria exclude some investments, investors may not be able to take advantage of the same opportunities or market trends as investors that do not use such criteria.

An investment in an exchange-traded fund involves risks similar to those of investing in a broadly based portfolio of equity securities traded on an exchange in the relevant securities market, such as market fluctuations caused by such factors as economic and political developments, changes in interest rates and perceived trends in stock prices. The investment return and principal value of ETF investments will fluctuate so that an investor’s ETF shares, if or when sold, may be worth more or less than the original cost.
