Risk and Reward Profile

The risk and reward category shown is based on historic data. The risk and reward indicator illustrates where the Sub-Fund is positioned in terms of its possible risk and reward. The higher the Sub-Fund’s position on this scale, the greater the possible reward, but also the greater risk of losing money. This risk indicator is calculated using historical data, which cannot be used as a prediction for the future. Therefore the risk classification may change over time. Even if the Sub-Fund is in the lowest risk class you can lose money, as no investments are entirely risk free. The fund is in this category because it invests in a range of assets with different levels of risk and the fund’s simulated and/or realised return has experienced medium rises and falls historically. The fund may be impacted by movements in the exchange rates between the fund’s currency and the currencies of the fund’s investments.

This rating does not take into account other risk factors which should be considered before investing, these include:

- Credit risk - the risk of loss arising from default that may occur if an issuer fails to make principal or interest payments when due. This risk is higher if the Sub-Fund holds low-rated, non-investment-grade securities.
- Derivatives risk – the risk of loss in an instrument where a small change in the value of the underlying investment may have a larger impact on the value of such instrument. Derivatives may involve additional liquidity, credit and counterparty risks.
- Emerging markets risk - the risk related to investing in countries that have less developed political, economic, legal and regulatory systems, including less developed custody and settlement practices, higher volatility and lower liquidity than non emerging market securities.
- Liquidity risk - the risk that arises when adverse market conditions affect the ability to sell assets of the Sub-Fund at a certain time and for a reasonable price.
- Operational risk - the risk of material losses that may arise as a result of human error, system and/or process failures, inadequate procedures or controls.
