This information is not intended to illustrate any specific products, and is not intended to, and should not, form a primary basis for any investment decision that you may make. Investing in the markets entails the risk of market volatility. The value of all types of investments may increase or decrease over varying time periods. Because of their narrow focus, sector investments tend to be more volatile than investments that diversify across many sectors and companies. To the extent investments mentioned herein represent securities, you should be aware that there may be additional risks associated with international investing, including foreign economic, political, monetary and/or legal factors, changing currency exchange rate, foreign taxes and differences in financial and accounting standards. These risks are magnified in countries with emerging markets, since these countries may have relatively unstable governments and less established markets and economics.

Past performance is no guarantee of future results and future results may not meet Morgan Stanley Smith Barney's expectations due to a variety of economic, market and other factors. Further, any projections of potential risk or return discussed in this presentation are illustrative and should not be taken as limitations of the maximum possible loss or gain.
